PRIVACY POLICY

With this data-protection statement, we would like to inform you about our data-protection and policy.

Data collection

You can visit our website without having to directly supply any personal data. Although we take great care to check their contents, we cannot assume any liability for external links to other websites.

Cookies, Tracker and Analyzing tools

We do not use cookies, a tracker or similar technology on our website.

Google Maps

For the cartographic depiction of directions we use the embedding features from Google Maps. Google Maps is a service of the company Goggle Inc., 1600 Amphitheatre Parkway, Mountain View, CA 94043 USA. By using this service, your IP-adress will be transmitted to Google to view the map details in your browser. This only occurs, if you call up the navigation on the map display by clicking on CONTACT.

For more information on the data Google Maps collects and procecesses, please refer to Google.

Vimeo

For the integration of videos we use the embedding features of the provider Vimeo. This is a service of the company Vimeo, LLC 555 West 18th Street, New York, New York 10011. On some of our pages we use Vimeo Plugins. By using this service, your IP-address will be transmitted to Vimeo, showing which of our websites you have accessed. If your are logged into Vimeo while using this service, Vimeo will assign this information towards your user account. You can prevent this from happening by logging out of your Vimeo account and deleting the corresponding cookies before using the services on our website. For more information on the data Vimeo collects and processes, please refer to Vimeo.

Logfiles

When visiting our Website, the server of our provider automatically saves technical data your internet browser sends by default. For example the IP-address, the requested file, date and time of the request, which browser opens the website and the browser version, the operating system and the name of the requested website. These data are not to be assigned to certain persons.

Changes of privacy policies

This data protection agreement will always be updated within the framework of the statutory provisions!

We herewith explicitly reject the use of the contact information published due to legal obligations by third parties, especially for not requested marketing campaigns and the sending of information. Any violations against this may result in legal steps taken by the organizer.
